

SkinPro CEO Timothy Schmidt Meets With Strategic Partner Lipotec

MIAMI, March 4, 2014 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- SkinPro, makers of renowned cosmeceutical products such as the globally popular Elite Serum Rx and DelfogoRx line of skin care products, is pleased to announce it's plans to continue it's highly successful partnership with Lipotec, a world leader in high tech active ingredients dedicated to cosmetics.

Company CEO Timothy J. Schmidt met with Domenico Palella, CEO of Lipotec, LLC recently in Miami and was "highly impressed with the continued dedication to research & development the company presented, especially in marine biotechnology."

The two CEO's discussed marine biotechnology in great detail, and entered discussions on working together on a product that has the ability to extend the results obtained by Botulinum Toxin on patients. With the Botulinum Toxin injection administered twice per year, the effects begin to decrease in the months following each respective treatment. New studies conducted by Lipotec essentially have the ability to help patients see enhanced results after each treatment.

"Our meeting was very efficient, educational, and as always, the research pipeline at Lipotec makes them a very sound long term strategic partner for SkinPro. We're honored to be working with such an established company," said Schmidt.

Lipotec is perhaps best known for the Argireline® peptide, a topical alternative to injections that has been the driving force behind SkinPro's highly effective Elite Serum Rx anti aging product. The company also makes Anarcticine® marine ingredient, featured in the Cryogenic Moisturizing Cream in the DelfogoRx line of skin care products, and many other products including nutricosmetics, and cosmetotextiles.

About SkinPro
